

CWC Associate of Humane Letters Honorary Degree Nomination Form

The Associate of Humane Letters is Central Wyoming College's honorary degree. It does not confer academic credentials, but instead recognize extraordinary achievement and community contributions. Anyone can nominate a community member from CWC's service district of Fremont, Teton or Hot Springs counties.

Goals for the CWC Honorary Degree, the Associate of Humane Letters (AHL):

- To build stronger community relationships throughout the CWC service area.
- To recognize the value of the community to CWC.
- To inspire students.

Criteria for nomination and selection:

- Honorary degrees recognize those who have made significant, noteworthy, and enduring contributions to the culture or quality of life in the communities that CWC serves. Contributions should impact a community at large; not CWC specifically.
- Honorary degrees are given only to persons of great integrity.
- Honorees are people who inspire students through their example.
- Special consideration will be given to nominees who have not completed a formal higher education program.

Eligibility

- This degree will not be conferred in exchange for a donation or gift to the college, and will not be conferred with the goal of garnering influence with an honoree who has political, financial, or media power.
- Normally, honorees will be living.
- Employees of CWC, members of the Board of Trustees, and members of the CWC Foundation Board are not eligible. Employees, trustees, and Foundation board members who have been separated from CWC for at least three years may be nominated.
- Honorary degrees may not be awarded to currently elected or appointed officials at the local, state or national levels to whom the College is directly or indirectly answerable. Declared candidates for such offices are also not eligible. Officials who have been out of office for at least three years may be nominated.
- Normally, CWC will award no more than one honorary degree per academic year.

Deadline to submit this form to the CWC Registrar's office: April 1, 2018

This award will be conferred at commencement on May 11, 2018

Please fill this out as completely and legibly as possible.
